Market Commentary

The performance of financial markets continued to improve in June with most major financial markets surging higher. The S&P500 which had been largely driven by tech stocks for most of the year, broadened in June with all 11 equity sectors ending the month in the green. The equity rally was also broad-based across the major regions of the world, with Developed Market stocks outpacing Emerging Market equities. Global sovereign bond yields increased as major central banks maintained a hawkish policy stance. Yields on US 10-year Treasurys reached the highest point since the early March banking turmoil. The RBA rounded off the quarter end with a 'pause' on rates to buy itself more time to assess how the economy and inflation evolve from here.

OUTLOOK

Given the potential risks and uncertainties in the market, a cautious approach to portfolio positioning on the 12-month investment horizon is highly recommended. While the current rally in equity markets may continue for a few more months, the underlying risks and uncertainties suggest caution. The potential for a recession, the narrowing breadth of the rally, and challenging global economic conditions warrant careful portfolio positioning. The importance of diversification, active risk management, and a focus on long-duration bonds becomes crucial in navigating the unpredictable financial landscape. By prudently managing risks and being prepared for various market scenarios, investors can position themselves for the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead over the coming months.
